Dear Mr Clarke

Thank you for your donation of $800.00 to Autism Spectrum Australia (Aspect) in lieu of Clarke & Severn Electronics purchasing Christmas cards. A tax-deductible receipt for this amount appears below.

You and generous supporters like you, have allowed us to go from assisting 5 children in one classroom in 1967 to the largest provider of autism specific services in Australia.

This year with your help we will assist over 6,000 people with an autism spectrum disorder and their families through one or more of our programs or services.

For our children, learning to develop communication skills, social skills and behavioural skills is the key to managing life with an autism spectrum disorder. The development of these skills in combination is necessary for each individual to reach their full potential.

In addition to this a child with autism has a far greater chance of learning to manage their disability if the entire family is integrated into a series of learning and support programs. For example our early intervention programs include a parent training module and our parent support network "Someone to turn to..."™ is aimed at supporting families at first diagnosis or during difficult transitions.

These vital programs along with many others that address the needs of people and families living with autism are either only partially funded or are not eligible for government assistance and rely on our family of supporters like you.

On behalf of all the children and families you are helping, thank you.

Yours sincerely
